FREE CARDS

Body Names Matching Cards

A cut-out matching game: the correct name for each body part, what it does, and a public and private sort.

WHO IT IS FOR
Autistic children and young people, with the parents, carers, teachers and SNAs who support them.

NCCA STAGE
Primary · Junior Cycle

Easy read

Match the name to the job. Use the real names. Private parts are private. This is a game.

How to use this resource

- Print on card and laminate if you can. Cut along the dotted lines.
- Start with the outside body parts. Add the private-part cards when your child is ready, in a private place with a trusted adult.
- Play one game at a time. Keep sessions short and stop when your child has had enough.
- Use the correct names every time. Match your words to the agreed words list used at home and school.
- You can play without the picture icons. Say or sign the names aloud as well.

Version 1.0 · body-names-matching-cards

How to play: 3 game ideas

1. Match up

Lay out the name cards. Hand over a job card. Find the name that matches. Say it aloud: 'The eyes help you see.'

2. Guess who

One person reads a job card. The other says the body part. Swap turns. No pointing is needed.

3. Sort it

Sort all name cards into two piles: share anywhere (public) and private (underwear covers). Use the sort page.

Win or lose?

There is no winning or losing. The aim is to know the names. If your child finds it hard, give a choice of two cards, or match with an adult.

Public and private: sort the body parts

Cut out the name cards, or use the list. Put each part in the right box. Parts we can name anywhere are on the left. Private parts are the ones underwear covers.

Public (we can talk about these anywhere)

- Eyes
- Ears
- Nose
- Mouth
- Hands
- Feet

Private (underwear covers them)

- Penis, testicles, scrotum
- Vulva, vagina
- Breasts, nipples
- Bottom, anus

Private parts are covered by underwear.

I talk about private parts in a private place.

I can talk to a trusted adult about any part.

Notes for adults

- Use only the correct names. Avoid pet names or euphemisms, which can confuse and can make it harder for a child to tell you if something happens.
- Pause if your child shows distress. Go back to the outside body parts. Return to private-part cards another day.
- Do not use the game to check what a child has experienced. If a child says something worrying, stay calm, listen, believe them, and follow your school's child protection procedures (Children First 2017) or contact Tusla.
- Teach 'private' as a rule about place, not shame: 'Private parts are private. We talk about them in a private place.'
- Add real body-part drawings from a health book you trust if your child prefers realistic images. This pack uses icons and words only.
- Play again and again. Repetition is how many autistic children learn.

If a child tells you something worrying

Stay calm. Listen, and believe them. Do not promise to keep it a secret. Write down what they said in their own words, with the date. Pass it on the same day: in a school, to the Designated Liaison Person (DLP); otherwise to Tusla. If anyone is in immediate danger, call 112 or 999. Follow Children First: National Guidance for the Protection and Welfare of Children (2017).
